Excerpt: . . . 18 case study providers inform their patients about the use of personal health information by giving notices of privacy practices and by other means. They also obtain patients consent to disclose health information for purposes of treatment, payment, and operation. Additionally, providers stated that they implement practices to facilitate patients ability to access and request corrections to personal health information, and all the HIEs and providers described practices intended to limit the disclosure and use of information to specific purposes. They also described practices they implement that are intended to address security, data quality, and accountability for protecting electronic personal health information. Detailed information about the privacy practices identified by our case 22 study organizations is included in appendix II. All of the 18 providers in our case studies inform their patients of their Providers Reported That overall privacy practices by giving them a notice in paper form, and 13 of They Inform Patients them post a copy of the notice on their Web site. These notices state that about...
